NURSERY NOTE

Ever since he played Dr. Dafoe in the Dionne quint's film, Jean Hersholt has been struggling under the handicap of being thought an expert on the rearing of infants. Thirty letters a week ask him if goat milk is best for two-year-olds; if gruel is better than dry cereal flakes, and how to keep babies from yelling their heads off at night.
 "The best infant quieter I ever heard of," says Hersholt, "is used by Negro mummies in Louisiana. They plant the kid in a chair, dip both hands in molasses, and slap a lot of feathers on one hand. They pick all the feathers off, then when the job is done, pick off the first hand, and start all over again. Keeps them solemnly occupied for hours. And teaches them concentration."

ATROCITIES IN SPAIN

Commenting on the atrocities in Spain, Dr. Head, Anglican Archbishop of Melbourne, Australia, stated:
 "There is surely something seriously lacking in the type of religious education in the past which produces men on either side who can do such things."

NO SANTA CLAUS

A senator warns Europe that Uncle Sam won't play Santa Claus again if war breaks out. Perhaps, indeed, it would be kinder if we just came right out and told them there isn't any Santa Claus, anyway. -- Worcester Gazette.
