

Visit Famous Hamilton Camp

Mrs. C. C. Boyer of Ely, in a letter to The Age, of date July 28, 1937, gives an interesting account of a day spent at one of the famous old mining camps not far from Ely.

"We had a lovely day Sunday, having been invited by Jean and Carl Muir to spend the day with them at their old home in Hamilton which is, as you may know, an almost deserted mining camp 40 miles from Ely on the slopes of Mt. Davidson, 8,200 feet elevation.

"In the '60's Hamilton was a bustling city, 35,000 people in the immediate vicinity, and the county seat of White Pine county. Carl Muir was born there and he and Jean had a store there until '31, when they moved to Ely. They have kept their home there intact, a simple but most comfortable old house full of pieces that antique dealers would give their right eyes for.

"They have a caretaker to look after the place and go up frequently in the summer for week ends. For last Sunday they invited, besides ourselves, the Rogers, Bradleys, Kinnears, Jardines, Pendletons, Huffers, and Mrs. Newman.

"Leaving Ely about 11:30 a. m. a very pretty ride of about an hour and a quarter through the mountains got us to Hamilton shortly before one o'clock. We had lunch shortly after. Jean is a grand cook as well as a very generous one and there was food enough for at least one regiment. After washing the dishes we drove up on Treasure Hill, through the old camp of that name, now in ruins, and to some of the old workings.

"Carl and John Eager had a lot of interesting tales to tell of the early days, I am sure you folks would have doted on them. When you folks are here again, if it is spring or summer, we want to take you out there.

"The top of Treasure Hill is 9,300 feet—almost straight up from Hamilton. Coming back we went through an old stone building in Hamilton, built in 1869 and still in use—a two-story affair that must have been quite a building in its day.

"When we got back to the Muir home we played cards, continuing until about 10:30, stopping about 7:30 for more food, a buffet supper. We arrived home at just midnight."

Mrs. Boyer is planning to spend a week or two with her mother, Mrs. C. P. Squires, at Deer Creek in the latter part of August.

Spend Big Money For Unemployed

After appointing personnel of the state unemployed compensation division carrying a salary list of nearly fifty thousand dollars a year, Kelly Klaus, director of the division, resigned his post as mysteriously as did Dr. J. D. Smith of this city a couple of months ago.

Mr. Klaus was returned to his former position as state liquor tax commissioner, and George W. Friedhoff, Lyon county rancher and former head of the federal housing administration, appointed director of the unemployment compensation division. Klaus, in resigning, stated that he is satisfied that there will be no changes in the personnel of the division as previously announced by him.

Salaries, not including a travel allowance of $150 per month for the head of the department, and an estimated $500 per month for other employees, figure approximately $49,740 per year as reported by bulletins of the department.
