FRATERNITIES FIGHT FOR GHOSTLY PLEDGE

A friendly battle for possession of a "pledge" waxed furiously on the University of Nevada campus last week. True identity of the desirable prospective member remained hidden. Only his nickname "Skelly," was known.

The contest started early this week when Skelly entered the ranks of Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity and was installed in the chapter house on University Terrace with proper ceremony.

Friday afternoon neither members or regular pledges were home in the Lambda Chi domicile. Skelly disappeared.

Friday night the missing L. C. A. pledge turned up at a Sigma Alpha Epsilon house dance and was the object of considerable attention.

Yesterday Lambda Chi's heard their pride and joy had been seen at the S. A. E. ball and promptly staged a raid on the Evans avenue house with no success. The S. A. E.'s permitted the search, protesting the missing pledge was not in their building.

Last night Lambda Chi members promised they would continue their hunt diligently this week—until the missing pledge was found.

Skelly is a skeleton—souvenir of some graduate student's studies at medical school.

El Brendel, noted screen comedian, spent the week-end at the Apache hotel.
