Myrna Loy Tops Splendid Cast

Myrna Loy, recently voted the most popular actress in American films, comes to El Portal screen Sunday, Monday and Tuesday in "Man-Proof," surrounded by a stellar cast which includes such well-known personalities as Franchot Tone, Rosalind Russell and Walter Pidgeon.

In the new picture, based on a novel by Fanny Heaslip Lea, Miss Loy makes a striking departure from her familiar role of the "perfect wife" to play an ultra-modern girl who overrides old-fashioned conventions in her pursuit of the man she loves.

The plot, in brief, describes Miss Loy as a newspaper artist in love with a social climber, Walter Pidgeon. When he marries Rosalind Russell, society heiress, Miss Loy resolves to win him back. Meanwhile, Franchot Tone, young cartoonist, falls in love with her. When the honeymooners return Miss Loy renews her siege. Pidgeon is surprised by his wife in Miss Loy's apartment. But when he is offered a divorce he refuses, knowing that he is in love only with himself. Miss Loy at last realizes the futility of her false romance and turns back to Tone.

In directing "Man-Proof", Richard Thorpe surrounded himself with the same production staff who assisted him in his other hits, "Night Must Fall" and "Double Wedding". Karl Freund, who filmed "The Good Earth," was the cameraman.

With a modern New York background, the picture has been given lavish settings which include metropolitan newspaper offices, millionaires mansions, night clubs and Madison Square Garden.

POLITICAL MONKEY WRENCH

Col. Leonard P. Ayres, the well-known economist, remarks that "probably it is true that no country stricken by a depression ever before faced a recovery problem that was so simple in its economic terms and so complex in its political terms."

Well, the lesson of it is that a dreadful mess can be made of economics when politicians turn economists.—Kansas City Times.
