Kirmans Visit In Death Valley

(By The Rambler)

DEATH VALLEY JUNCTION, Cal. April 18.—Governor Richard Kirman of Nevada, accompanied by Mrs. Kirman and their son, Richard Kirman, Jr., and the latter's wife and 10 year old daughter, Jean, spent several days last week touring Death Valley and were registered at hotel Amargosa.

The Governor's party was traveling incognito, or virtually so inasmuch as they made the request when they arrived that their identity be kept quiet. They were so quiet and modest that very few persons knew that they were here until after they had gone.

However, the Rambler, loafin' about the hotel, spotted the Governor early in his sojourn here. In fact he had a 20 minute chat with the Governor and his son, before their departure.

Governor Kirman struck us as a very pleasant agreeable gentleman; in fact, the whole family gave the impression as congenial, wholesome people with no apparent flare for the sensational or spectacular.

However, we detected somehow, an apparent "rift in the lute" of the family status. This, because we learned that, while Governor Kirman was elected as a Democrat of the old school, and still maintains that status—it is also reliably asserted that his son is a firm believer in the principles of the Republican party—and still sticks to that conviction, irrespective of his position in life as son of a Democratic Governor of Nevada. Perhaps somewhat liberal and progressive, but nevertheless, a Republican and he did not change his political complexion in order to get a job.

The party left early Friday morning for their respective northern homes—the Governor and Mrs. Kirman to Carson City and Mr. Kirman, Jr., and wamily to Reno.

WINS WOMEN'S NATIONAL RIFLE CHAMPIONSHIP—Miss Eleanor Lum, from Madison, N. J., carried off the National Women's Amateur Small Bore Rifle Championship. Miss Lum scored 599 out of a possible 600 shots.

MODERN LIGHT WIZARD —Putting more light hours in electric bulbs for street and industrial use has put Maxwell M. Bilofsky, president of Duro-Test Corporation, in the place of largest independent manufacturer in the business. His rapid climb has attracted national attention. He is now starting to make bulbs for home use.

SUN COAT—Bright and cherry is this printed cotton sun coat worn by Dorothy Moore, winsome RKO-Radio starlet. The colorful black print in beige brown and orange also fashions the sun bonnet with its open crown.

Wardlaws Return To Las Vegas

Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Wardlaw and their grandson, Phillip Willingham, were in Las Vegas last Saturday and Sunday, visiting Boulder Dam and Lake Mead and other points of interest in this section.

Mr. and Mrs. Wardlaw resided in Las Vegas at one time, leaving here about twenty years ago to reside in New Mexico. Mrs. Wardlaw is a daughter of J. A. Delameter, a pioneer contractor of Las Vegas, who among other things, constructed the first cement sidewalks on Las Vegas streets.

Mrs. Delameter died some time ago, we are informed, but Mr. Delameter still resides in New Mexico. Mr. and Mrs. Wardlaw are now living at 1214 West 38th place, Los Angeles.

Thomas O. Harland of Beverly Hills, Cal., formerly a resident of Las Vegas, was a week end visitor in this city, renewing acquaintances with old friends and looking after property here.
