Oil Operator Through Vegas

The intimates of yesterday are very welcome to all of us. One of our old time friends, C. H. Biglow, remembered for his activity in promoting The Arrowhead Trail called on us today.

Mr. Bigelow was enroute to Utah completing a round trip to the Atlantic Coast cities. His impression of business conditions briefly summed up are — that the west is booming in comparison to the east but he anticipates further recession in business this summer.

In his line, oil production, he told the Editor that he and his associates are devoting their energy, at present, to fortifying themselves financially so that they may be able to weather at least another year of economic doldrums.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD
PICTURE SETTINGS

In your springtime pictures, use blossoms and flowers to help get the "feel" of the season.

IN TAKING outdoor pictures of people, are you careful to get the "feel of the season" into each picture, by proper selection of background and surroundings?

An outdoor picture without such "feel" is like a stage without scenery—or, worse, with the wrong scenery. For instance, some of us will take a springtime shot of a child in the yard, with the garage or back steps as a background—when the child could just as easily have been pictured kneeling beside a row of jonquils, bending over and sniffing one. In the latter case, how much more pleasing, and meaningful, the picture would be!

In your Maytime pictures, why not associate people with blossoms and the early flowers? In summer pictures, emphasize the deep blue of the sky and white masses of cloud by using a color filter on the lens. In autumn, let your pictures show the withering leaves and brown fields, with gray skies or billowy clouds hovering over, as backgrounds for your pictures. And in winter, make full use of the snow, and bare branches against the sky.

Try to work into each of your outdoor pictures some feature, even if a mere detail, that gives definite indication of the season. Make it an essential part of the picture, so that folks who look at your snapshots can "feel" the time of year. It seems like a small point, but you will be surprised when you see how much it adds to the pictures that come out of your camera.
