'Take Life Easy In the Summer Months

DON'T work yourself to a frazzle this summer. Plan your housekeeping so that the heat doesn't get you down. This can be done with a little careful management, including the use of energy-savers.

If you get full service from only the household washer and ironer, for example, it goes far toward making house-keeping a pleasure and never a bore. With them the daily cleanliness problem is so simply and pleasantly solved that it becomes easy to welcome one's husband at the door cool and fresh and serenely conscious that dinner is waiting to be served—the final touch of a day's smoothly running home management.

Look for corners that can be cut in the maintenance of a house. Put away bric-a-brac that needs careful dusting. Replace heavy draperies with easily laundered curtains. Dress the children in comfortable play clothes that you may toss into the washer and speed through your ironer without care. Be equally careful yourself in the selection of garments that can be kept fresh and attractive by the same simple means.

Simplifying one's work as much as possible in these ways enables you to spend the time you have in doing the thing you like to do for fun, whether it is gardening, swimming, motoring, improving your golf score or just resting an hour or two for a change.

THE LOW DOWN FROM HICKORY GROVE

I see where it says in the paper that our Number One trouble in this country is in the South — and we have got to fix it right away.

TOO HIGH

There seems to be no truth in the report that a feature of the New York world fair next year will be a daily parachute leap from the top of the national debt.—Wichita Eagle.
