Joan Tetzl is the victim of 1941's oddest coincidence. She was forced to turn down the role of a daytime radio actress in a Broadway play because her duties as a daytime radio actress on Valiant Lady don't allow enough time for this extra labor!

One of radio's busiest ingenues is 21 year old Joan Tetzl, whose latest assignment is the Court of Missing Heirs program heard Tuesdays at 8:00 p. m. EST over CBS. The program is celebrating its first anniversary on the air this month and in that time has turned up 45 heirs and restored $331,350 in unclaimed estates to rightful owners.

More and more screen stars are turning to radio than to the stage because radio offers more frequent work, has more civilized hours, and in the long run is more lucrative," says screen star Judith Allen, who recently left Hollywood for New York where she is appearing on the Shadow program Sundays, 5:30 p. m. EST over CBS.

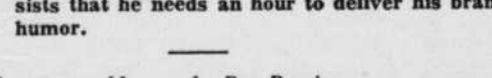

Fred Allen is one of radio's hardest working performers. He practically writes his Wednesday night 9:00 p. m. EST CBS Star Theater program himself, though he pays several writers to whip up first drafts for him to rewrite. Allen is the only comedian on the air with an hour long program. He insists that he needs an hour to deliver his brand of humor.

Shirley Ross is the new warbler on the Ben Bernie Music Quiz Tuesdays at 8:00 p. m. over the NBC-Blue while Bernie is fulfilling a band engagement at the swank Victor Hugo in Beverly Hills. When the Bernie program returns to New York, Carol Bruce will again do the singing for the O' Maestros.

Al Pearce and his gang got a swell Christmas present from their sponsor... a renewal contract which keeps their Friday, 7:30 p. m. EST spot on CBS intact for some time to come. Al recently decided to add more women to his gang of comedians and from now on you'll be hearing some of Hollywood's top character actresses on the show.

Attorney Graves Now Ready for Practice

Madison B. Graves is properly pleased by the word which comes from Carson City that the Supreme Court has approved his application for admission to the Nevada Bar. The admission was made on the strength of his certificate from Massachusetts where he practiced law from 1934 to 1940.

Press Association Meeting February 15

The 1941 convolve of the Nevada State Press Association has been set by President Jack McCloskey for February 15.

As usual the meeting will be held on the University of Nevada campus in cooperation with The Course in Journalism.

With a stimulating program in the making, McCloskey urged all newspapermen in the state to mark the date on their calendar pads and to let nothing interfere with their attendance.

Already booked for the occasion is Roy Brown of San Rafael, California, president of the National Editorial association. Brown will be the first NEA president ever to have spoken at a NSPA gathering.

John Long, manager of the California Newspaper Publishers' association, will be on hand with the latest word from the newspaper publishing battle front.

It is probably that he will be accompanied, as last year, by the entire executive committee of the CNPA, including some of the best newspaper men in the Golden State.

Again the delegates and their ladies will be guests of the Reno Evening Gazette and the Nevada State Journal at the annual dinner at the Riverside hotel.

A special speaker upon a subject of interest to all present is being sought by the committee in charge.

If the judges complete their scoring of the state-wide front page contest, the results will be announced and the award made at the convention.

Every paper in the state, with one exception, is entered, and the exhibits are now in the judges' hands in the East.
