TODAY YOUNGSTERS DON'T CARE ABOUT RACE

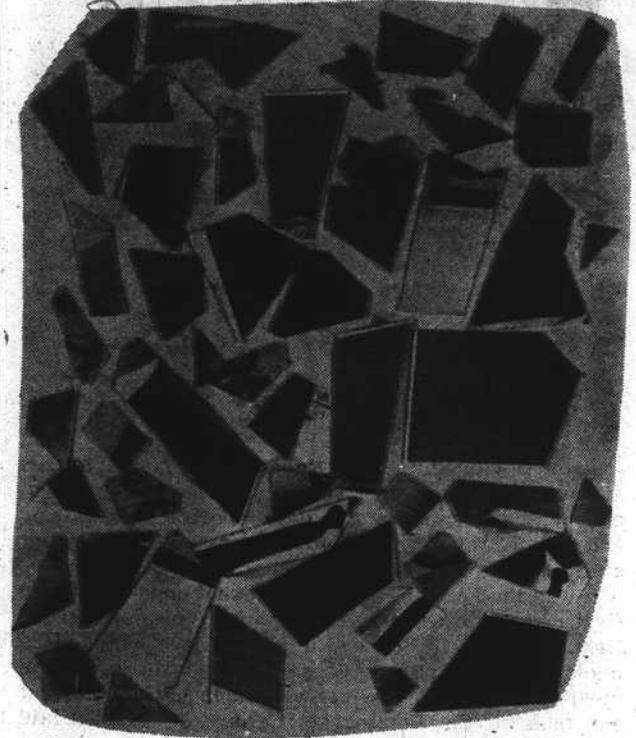

Racial prejudice is not innate. It is a disease which has its highest incident among the old folks. That children, even in the South must be taught bigotry, is an admitted fact. That the lesson is poorly learned and its logic is being questioned, is one of the bright spots in an otherwise cloudy picture of today's youth.

Today's children are rebelling against all forms of parental restraint. They are questioning adult reasoning. They are discovering much of it to be faulty, little of it to be based upon indisputable facts. The weakest link they find, in the adult chain of don't which have harnessed their actions from diaper days, is that which contradicts the country's greatest document, the Declaration of Independence.

It is a stupid child who respects the superior intelligence of an adult who tells him that all men are created equal, yet teaches him that people with dark skins are his inferiors. Equally disturbing to the mentally alert Dixie youngsters must be illogic of a society which permits him to be weaned at the breast of a black woman and to play with black children everyday, but separates him from his Negro friends at the door of a schoolhouse or on the steps of a church.

Stumping the ethnologists as well as school authorities, truant officers and the whole Presidential administration are the problems of color conscious adults and their progeny -- those hellraisers of all races. Ironically, the joker in this double-trouble deck is DESEGREGATION. And desegregation which places the vortex of our racial problems at the small-fry level is bothering nobody but the grownups.
