

BUSINESS LEADERS CHARGED

SAN FRANCISCO--California industrial and business leaders have been charged with principal responsibility for solving the state's civil rights problems by James P. Mitchell, chairman of the San Francisco Human Relations Committee.

man Relations Committee.

Mitchell delivered his appeal to an appropriate audience, members of the Commonwealth Club here, largely composed of industrial and business leaders in northern California.

"Many believe--certainly I do--that the heart of the matter here is economic," Mitchell said.

"The Federal civil rights bill will secure for the Negro in California few, if any, safeguards that he does not already enjoy in the State.

"What he lacks, what he wants, what he must be given the opportunity to get, is employment and a higher standard of living."

Ten Religious Leaders Label Bigotry Immoral

PHILADELPHIA, Pa.--A statement condemning racial discrimination as immoral and "in no way" justifiable has been issued by ten religious leaders of the Catholic, Protestant and Jewish faiths.

They cautioned, however, that the manner "by which rights are claimed must remain within the framework of order and just law."

The statement was issued at a dinner inaugurating a Commission on Human Relations of the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Philadelphia.

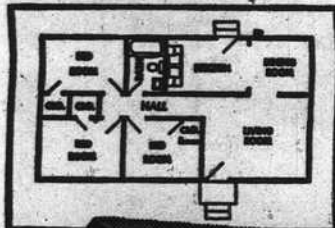

Formation of the commission was announced last month by Archbishop John J. Krol, one of the signatories to the statement.

The dinner was held in the rectory of SS. Peter and Paul where a pontifical mass was celebrated afterward. The sermon was preached by Auxiliary Bishop John J. Graham, chairman of the commission.
