Madison Students Present Play, Concert

A DICTIONARY PLAY, "Tammy Makes a Friend", was presented by Madison School fourth graders in the home rooms of Mrs. Sweetie King and Mr. Lindburgh Smith on Jan. 29. The main parts were played by Ruby Bolden as Tammy, Dexter Brewer as the Dictionary, Purvis Galtney as the Father, and Seona Moody as the Mother. The play utilized all skills needed in using a dictionary effectively.

The students of room 51 presented a concert, "Youth On The March", at the Second Baptist Church on Sunday, Jan. 31, under the direction of Mr. Lindburgh Smith. Purpose of the affair was to further closer relationships between the school and community in cooperation with the Rev. V.C.L. Coleman, Bethel pastor.

A new special teaching project is underway at Madison to develop problem solving ability in practical situations, with Mr. William Evans, Mrs. E. Sellers, and Mrs. Bernice Moten in charge.

A group of Madison students have volunteered to take part in this experimental arithmetic program, which is geared to the social backgrounds of the individuals involved. The students will take a problem out of an unfamiliar setting and restate it in a familiar one. Before this can be accomplished, certain techniques will be introduced for making problems real and meaningful to those attempting to reconstruct them.

Moreover, the instructors state that specific needed funds for the center," which provides a well-rounded program of sports and cultural activity for 250 members, each of whom pays a fee of 50 cents.

Although his main interest is sports, Mr. Ford has instituted an arts and craft program, has installed a library for children, has formed a class for modern dancing and is planning a music program.

"We are striving to build bodies and minds at the same time," said the soft-spoken teacher, who is 5 feet 10 inches tall and weighs 185 pounds.

Mrs. Ford, a substitute teacher in Bristol Township and direct action chairman for the Bucks County Chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, is proud of the award received by her husband. It consisted of a plaque, membership in the Junior Chamber of Commerce and $300 worth of equipment for the community center.

"HE WORKS HARD and deserved it," she commented. "He also has earned other things in life that he hasn't got. He wants to be a high school or college football coach and he has the ability, but he hasn't a chance because of his race.

"Henry knows more about the game than many who coach," she went on, "and we know coaches who will readily admit this is true. But he'll not get a coaching job. The country just isn't ready for Negro coaches."

Mr. Ford attended the University of Pittsburgh on a football scholarship. He played football for four years without missing a game. In 1954 he was named the most valuable player on the Pitt squad. That year he was drafted by the Cleveland Browns, who traded him to the Pittsburgh Steelers, for whom he was a defensive back in 1957-58.

and pray and try to be miniature Christs to others. And doing these things, we place ourselves in the likeliest place to be found by Him. "I go a-fishing.

You and I may need this word today. God may seem remote, religion unreal, and as for the Master, He too, may seem a dim fact stranded amid the years long gone. Those seven men found Him--were found by Him--did their jobs as well as they knew how. If it is a dark night with you, and you seem to have lost Him in the fog of sorrow or doubt or folly, keep on truly, do justly, live longingly, and in the breaking of the day Christ will come to you. He will come not by sighing with Cowper, "Return, O Holy Dove, return," but by doing humbly and faithfully what we know to be right. Don't you feel a little more able, now, to say with Peter in this fine, loyal sense, "I go a-fishing," even if it means a black night, fruitless toil? For in the morning we shall see Him on the radiant shore!
