

Limit Pupils to 480 For Summer Project

ELEMENTARY SCHOOL PRINCIPALS now have applications for the second Clark County School District-Nevada Southern summer school enrichment program to be held at the Ruby Thomas and Ruth Fyfe Schools, June 14 through July 23.

Enrollment will be limited to 480 students who enjoy school work and desire academic stimulation during the summer. The program is not intended to facilitate "skipping a grade," for "make-up" or remedial work, nor is it specifically designed for gifted students.

Basically, the program will serve as a workshop for the introduction of newer elementary education teaching methods and techniques in the county public schools.

As a cooperative venture between the school district and the University of Nevada, it serves as a student teaching program for the university, and as a partial training program for teachers presently teaching or planning to teach in team situations in Clark County and also for up-grading teachers without professional teaching certificates.

Students will attend three-hour sessions daily for six weeks. Tuition is $40 per child, payable to the university at the time applications are submitted. Further details may be obtained from Dr. Herbert Derfelt at Nevada Southern (736-2222) or by contacting the nearest elementary school principal.
