Newport Jazz Bash Draws Top Swingers

NEWPORT, R.I. — A field used to dry fish nets will be the site of one of jazzdom's biggest bashes

July 1-4, the 12th annual Newport Jazz Festival. The Duke will be there. And so will Count Basie and Thelonious Monk and (shades of sentimental swing) Frank Sinatra, the little guy of the big-band era.

A few pieces of fencing and wooden stakes now mark the field where thousands will crowd before the bandstand to hear some of the world's top jazz performers.

The festival stage will be set up at the southern end of the field. About a half mile away is the city dump.

In addition to Sinatra, the sound-makers include Count Basie, Dave Brubeck, Miles Davis,

Duke Ellington, Dizzy Gillespie, Stan Getz, Carmen McRae, Joe Williams, the Modern Jazz Quartet, Thelonious Monk, John Coltrane, Herbie Mann, Bud-dy Rich, Louis Bellson . . . and more.

The annual affair opens July 1 with a program featuring folk artists Pete Seeger, Muddy Waters, Memphis Slim and Willie Dixon. They will be joined by jazz luminaries Joe Williams, Dizzy Gillespie and the Modern Jazz Quartet in demonstrating how the blues got bluer and cooler down through the years.
