straight line. A biped might hop on one foot for a short distance. But for 100 miles? Running quadrupeds sometimes leave prints that appear to be a single track, but close scrutiny will show separate feet.

Scientists examined the tracks but could give no rational answer to the question of what animal could cover 100 miles in a night. Even considering that it was a hoax, men then had no transportation—aside from trains—that could cover that distance that fast.

Rumor swept Devonshire that the prints could have been made only by the Devil and the mysterious tracks are still referred to as the Devil's Footprints. • of four to six weeks who live and work with the economically deprived of any community when requested by proper authority.

ADULT BASIC EDUCATION:

A special program of literacy instruction for adults 18 years of age and older who have less than a 6th grade education. It is sponsored by the Nevada State Department of Education.

POVERTY in RURAL AREAS:

A special program provides loans and technical assistance to help very low income farm families to increase their income from farming or to develop new ways for earning added income.

The program also includes assistance for migrant agriculture workers in the fields of health, housing, sanitation and education, and provides day centers for their children.

EMPLOYMENT and INVESTMENT INCENTIVES:

This program provides loans for small businesses not eligible under other loan programs.

WORK EXPERIENCE:

Funds are provided for projects to help unemployed fathers and other needy persons to gain work experience and job training through this program. It is directed primarily toward jobless heads of families in which there are dependent children.

Programs are now in operation in Clark and Washoe Counties and the Fort McDermitt Indian colony.
