

We've Been WONDERING

WHY the unlisted numbers are the busiest.
? ? ? ? ?

WHY those makers of top pieces for men don't add more authenticity to their works of art by adding a little dab of dandruff.
? ? ? ? ?

WHY the last of the vanishing big spenders insists on explaining his marital woes while gulping a mouthful of goobers.
? ? ? ? ?

WHY so many of those that live at the taxpayers' expense come on so strong with the weakest lies. . . like blowing the pad loot and actually expecting the land props to understand their sad tales of "us's pore cullud folks".
? ? ? ? ?

WHY the sequences of 7-17-27-31-61-62-64-65 and 8-18-28-71-73-75-80-79 are supposed to be lucky for persons born in July, August and September.
? ? ? ? ?

WHY every time a new investor decides to spend some cabbage in our part of town, they are met by the same self-styled (never have been and with the remotest possibility of ever being) "bonified financial" advisors--if you are in doubt, let the record speak.
? ? ? ? ?

WHY those certain border-line wrong-doers go out of their way to give local gendarmes the magpie treatment (when diggin' one hole remember there's one waiting for you).
? ? ? ? ?

WHY Mr. Bifocal put on such a pitiful heart-broken act when he made the scene with two L.A. dolls on his arms and found his favorite pink in the arms of his arch business competitor.
? ? ? ? ?

WHY that young purveyor of epicurean delights wears those tight-fitting britches--olive green, yet. . .not veddy cricket, old chap, while dishing up the well-advertised wares.
? ? ? ? ?

WHY Brother, the bachelor, shakes his head hammock style whenever that LaVerne (Maxine, that is) honey bun graces the stage with her lovely exposure west. . . Hold 'em Joe.
? ? ? ? ?

WHY or what those connoisseurs meant by the statement the CHICKen aLICE is looking finger-licking good.
? ? ? ? ?

BRAND NEW KIND OF STOOL PIGEON

ARTHUR REICHENBERGER of Phoenix, Arizona, is not likely to be a very popular person with bartenders.

Arthur has developed an electronic fink that sends a signal to a receiver in the boss' office whenever a drink is poured from any bottle. The fink tells the receiver, an electronic private eye, the amount that was poured, as well as from what bottle it was poured.

The bar manager can go on a week-end trip and not worry about how business was during his absence. When he gets back to his office, the receiver will give an accurate record of exactly how much money should be in the till. That is not all that the 'see-all tell-all' whiskey fink reports. It also gives an exact accounting of how much whiskey was poured, and how much should be left on the bar.

Mr. Reichenberger's ingenious device is certain to be very popular with bar owners on first reaction, but it is more certain to create a shortage of bartenders. A bartender won't be able to pick up an extra 'honest buck' with the whiskey finks looking over his shoulder and making a permanent record of everything that happens over the bar.

PERHAPS ARTHUR has also invented a thing-amajig that will replace the barkeeper. It will certainly have to be a most ingenious gadget. It will have to pour the drinks, wash the glasses, keep the bar clean, listen to the tales of woe of all the drunks, have a brand new joke to tell when things get dull, and a list of hot phone numbers for the Johns.

If the Phoenix Einstein can come up with the electronic bartender, his work will still be only half done. Arthur will have a bad time getting his whiskey pouring robots in the bartenders union.
