"The Crappie Catcher"

We have not really forgotten this column for nimrods. We have for the moment switched our interests to hunting.

We will probably be busily engaged in hunting until the season closes on November 8--the Big Game (Political) season will close on that date, and we will be back with you immediately after the hunt.

The Crappie Catcher is stalking phoney politicians and is on the trail of one skunk in particular. We expect to pull the trigger on this skunk November 8--General Election day.

We appeal to our readers to help us stalk this animal and shoot him down before he stinks up the whole state of Nevada. He goes by the name of Paul something or other, and is trying to get into the Governor's mansion in Carson City.

You readers can save the day by voting for the best friend you ever had in Carson City.

Vote for GRANT SAWYER for GOVERNOR.

P.S. Thanks for helping Nevada. To show appreciation for that help, the Crappie Catcher will let you in on a red hot tip from the stars above.

According to astrology, the best days for fishing, for the balance of this year, are as follows:

- October 14, 15, 23, 24, 25
- November 2, 3, 11, 12, 20, 21, 29, 30
- December 8, 9, 17, 18, 27, 28.

GOOD FISHING! VOTE SAWYER!

Everybody loves a winner--so, natch, everybody loves the BALTIMORE ORIOLES, World Baseball Champions of '66...I really shouldn't have said EVERYBODY loves a winner, because I know a few people who bet the kitchen sink and Little Tommy's lunch money against the ORIOLES winning the World Series and it may be that those unhappy folks don't love the ORIOLES, but you can bet everybody respects a winner.

BALTIMORE couldn't lose for winning and the LOS ANGELES DODGERS couldn't win for losing. I've been wondering where the DODGERS got the nickname of 'Bums'; now I know. There was no other name they deserved to be called the day WILLIE DAVIS made those three errors --one error, that happens to the best 'tis said, then when the errors increase to two in number, you begin to wonder who is playing who. When they amount to three, you begin to think harsh thoughts...like maybe this is another Black Sox scandal; the kindest thoughts is maybe WILLIE is sick, or tired; or a vagrant thought occurs that maybe you are looking at the wrong ball game because pretty soon there were errors all over the place...Actually, on that particular fateful day of a never-to-be forgotten Series, there was no evidence that the BALTIMORE ORIOLES were not playing bush leaguers.

Believe it or not, and some don't believe it after being eye witnesses to the merciless slaughter, the DODGERS didn't score a run after the 3rd inning of the first game which was miserable representation from 'Champions'. The DODGERS were supposed to have the pitchers, and the ORIOLES, the hitters. It turned out BALTIMORE had it all--The DRAMBOWSKYS, McNALLYs, BUNKERS, ROBINSONS and the BLAIRS... The hopelessly futile and inept DODGERS didn't get anything or anybody going... And even when DRYSDALE pitched a good game, he got no help. It's possible to look good losing, but this time the DODGERS really were bums. Well, as it is always pointed out, 'there's always next year for Dandy SANDY and his no hitters and no-hitting team mates... You can also bet the Los Angeles International Airport wasn't too crowded when the losing DODGERS returned home because many of their fans will have to work overtime to get a new kitchen sink and more lunch money for Little Tommy.

Now that baseball is on ice until spring training, the full spotlight is focused on football, and pro-football offered a thrilling upset Sunday when the SAN FRANCISCO '49' ers edged the GREEN BAY PACKERS 21-20... ST. LOUIS CARDINALS came from behind and really hustled to defeat the NEW YORK GIANTS 24-19... The OAKLAND RAIDERS blanked the MIAMI DOLPHINS 21-0... The LOS ANGELES RAMS' 14-7 victory over the DETROIT LIONS puts them in a first place tie with the PACKERS... While Baltimore was celebrating the ORIOLES baseball championship, the CHICAGO BEARS were upsetting the BALTIMORE COLTS with a 27-17 score while the WASHINGTON REDSKINS just did nose out the stubborn ATLANTA FALCONS 33-20.

JOSE TORRES, light heavyweight champion of the world puts his title on the line for the third time when he engages CHIC CALDERWOOD of Scotland in a 15 rounder in the Champ's home town, San Juan, Puerto Rico. JOSE claims he will do better in this fight than he did here in Las Vegas against EDDIE PATTON.

The BOSTON CELTICS with their great player-coach, BILL RUSSELL are indicating they will again be Basketball Champs, but a greatly improved CINCINNATI ROYALS team is showing equal indication they intend to give 'hem a fight to the finish.
