

ST. MAURICE OF AGANAUM
 Roman General and Saint of the Catholic Church
 (A.D. 287)

St. Maurice is now the principal saint of central and southern Germany, and parts of France, Switzerland, Spain and Italy. He is also the title patron of Cracow, Coburg, Lauenburg, and Savoy. He is on the coat-of-arms of each of these princely houses. September 22 is his saints' day and he is the celestial saint of millions of Christians. He is the patron of the infantry and of dyers, clothmakers, and swordsmiths. Sufferers from the gout plead for his intercession. The Sardinian Order of St. Maurice, one of Italy's most prized decorations, is named in commemoration of him.
