

FIRST CHECKS under Nevada's new state law for extended unemployment benefits are noted with approval by Gov. Mike O'Callaghan left, and Executive Director Robert Archie of the Nevada Employment Security Department. O'Callaghan earlier swept aside "red tape" to expedite the new law, which he urged in his State of the State message as an emergency measure for the state's unemployed. Jobless Nevadans eligible for additional unemployment benefits began receiving checks this week.

Board members also approved recommendations of the Planning Committee to submit Program Funding Requests for three new programs with stipulation that the Program and Planning Committee would conduct further review of the proposed programs and make whatever revision or correction they find necessary or required. The Programs are: Project Pay (Preventive Addiction for Youth)--Drug Program Senior Citizen Emergency Food and Medical Program; and Information Research and Retrieval System--the latter, an Innovative Program.

New members elected to the Board were Jack Fagg, representing the County Commission; W. J. Sandoval, Moapa Migrant Council; and Clemencia Jabbs, Henderson Chapter, Welfare Rights Organization.

the good of the Black Community. According to the 1970 census, the Black Community, because of its 24,760 population, could directly elect one senator and two assemblymen. If the legislature denies this opportunity to the Black Community it will be another ten years before reapportionment is again an issue. During that time the population will continue to increase and Black Voters will remain in a period of inadequate representation.

Again I charge you with the responsibility of voting in favor of the single district, thus making the Nevada Legislature truly representative of all the people.

Yours for effective representation of Nevada Voters.

Sincerely,
