

A LINE ON SPORTS

By ELBURT MILLER

It was a good entertainment for about 2-1/2 hours, didn't you enjoy it? Of course, I'm talking about the Super Bowl disaster between the Dallas Cowboys and Miami Dolphins last Sunday. Dallas won 24-3.

Most football minded folks expected Dallas to show virtually little or no mercy. However, on the other hand, you'll have those fans who truly felt the Dolphins possessed hidden magic that would propel them to a Super Bowl championship. I think, honestly, these fans would have a better chance trying to hit a $25,000 Keno ticket with sixty-cents. It's just not going to happen.

The Miami Dolphins couldn't win the Super Bowl: Because within themselves...they won their Super Bowl when they surprisingly upset the mighty Kansas City Chiefs and Baltimore Colts. After those astonishing victories they had only one thing left, Defeat. Whereas the Cowboys really didn't have to play their best to beat the Vikings or the 49ers. Therefore, when they met the Dolphins they were at full strength and let everyone know it. I hope the Dolphins didn't take it personally. Anyway, the game is over and the Cowboys celebrated their triumphant win with the traditional champagne bath. Watching them bathe in all that champagne, I wonder how the poor wine-o's are reacting to the situation. I know I don't care, Do you? Besides if they really want a drink that bad let them get in shape and win a Super Bowl. They should know by now that prosperity doesn't knock at the lower levels.

This is the last year for the Super Bowl because next year it will be called the "Money Bowl". Save your money, if you don't have it, chances are you won't be invited.

Heavyweight champion Joe Frazier, appearing overweight and off on his timing, hammered courageous Terry Daniels of Dallas into a technical knockout at 1:45 of the fourth round, Saturday night to retain his World Heavyweight Championship. Frazier, the heaviest of his career at 215 1/2 pounds, knocked Daniels to the floor four times and finally draped him over the middle rope of the ring to score his lopsided victory.

I could go on, but its not necessary, everyone knows it was a dull fight; I don't think Daniels hit Frazier hard one time, If he did it was only once. I still think Joe has repercussions dating back to his fight with Mr. Ali. I do hope they're not serious. Joe is a great fighter, no one can deny that fact. I want to see Joe and Ali fight again, but again, I don't think brother Joe can walk away from it again and ever be the same.

The Rebels seem to have somewhat ironed out a few of their problems for they are back on the winning road. They are 2-2 in Conference play which isn't anything to brag about, but doesn't by any means put them out of the championship contention. If they keep fighting they have an excellent chance. My odds are 3-1.

Will Las Vegas ever have a Pro Team in the Major Sports? Chances are they won't. Mainly, they (promoters) say because of the gambling. We all know gambling is in every pro sport to the greatest degree. Las Vegas wouldn't be any different, but it would be more obvious and maybe ruin it for the other pro teams. We know nobody needs any undue publicity, not even the gangsters. Who cares anyhow?!!

EOB Opens Community Alcoholism Center In WLW

"Open House" festivities, (Friday), marked the opening of the second Community Alcoholism Center to become operative, locally, under an OEO-funded Alcoholism Program, delegated by the Economic Opportunity Board of Clark County to the State Alcoholism Program for administration under the direction of Earl Pomerleau, Coordinator of the Nevada Alcoholism Division (Southern Office). The newest facility is located at 330 West Washington Blvd Friday "Open House" will provide opportunity for West Las Vegas residents, a sprinkling of public officials, representatives from a number of social agencies, and members of the working press to be made conversant with the services the Center will offer as delineated by the Center's Alcoholism Counselor, Mrs. Louise Roberston.

Mrs. Robertson noted that the need for a Community Alcoholism Center in West Las Vegas had become increasingly apparent when it was realized that other Centers established over the past two years were not reaching the Black population of the Las Vegas area. She said that services of the Center will include, along with counseling of the Alcoholic and his (or her) families, information and educational programs on alcoholism, referral services, and the establishment of community "contact" groups.

Mrs. Robertson brings a wealth of knowledge, experience, and an obvious commitment to the rehabilitation of alcoholics to the position of Alcoholism Counselor.

For a period of three years Mrs. Robertson (see EOB, page 11)
