persons who have expressed their confidence in my ability to cope with the issues to be faced by county government during the next four years."

In turning to the discussion of zoning problems and requests for variances, which have been plaguing county officials for years, Franklin said that he could see no sense in spending huge sums of the taxpayers money to formulate and update master plans, "and then immediately proceed to violate those plans without justification."

Government is going to have to be more responsive to the recommendations made by residents and property owners through their respective Town Boards in the unincorporated and outlying areas," Franklin continued.

Some horrible things have been done, usually under the guise of progress, which have sub-property values and caused hardships to persons who have invested life savings in homes and properties in these areas.

"The idea of persons sitting on the Clark County Planning Board who are not residents of the unincorporated areas or of the outlying areas, yet proceed to recommend what zoning should apply in those areas, is not appealing to me at all. I would not like someone who lives outside of my area coming into my neighborhood and telling me and my neighbors just what kind of zoning we are going to have to live with. It's indecent, undemocratic and uncalled for," Franklin charged.

"Another area of great concern to all residents of Clark County is Southern Nevada Memorial Hospital. This situation demands top priority and the remodeling of the hospital, the increase in the scope of its medical activities, and the addition of new, sophisticated medical equipment is a matter of extreme urgency to each one of us," Franklin concluded.

Franklin, an employee of the Continental Telephone Company, is a union steward and member of the executive board of local 357, IBEW.

Franklin resides at 251 Chaparral Drive in Henderson, with his wife, the former Marcia Lunzmann, and two daughters, Tracie, 3 and Christine, eighteen, months old.....
