

BLACK PRESS WEEK, from page 1

forms still exists for black Americans, Mr. Reeves points out.

"And this," declares the NNPA head, "is the continuing challenge of the black press which now stands at 208 in number with a combined circulation of more than four million, according to Dr. Henry G. LaBrie, a research fellow at Harvard University who has just completed a study of the black press."

A good indication of the continuing need for a vigorous black press to help support the long hard fight for full, first-class citizenship for our people is the establishment of more and more black newspapers at a time when white papers are declining in number, Mr. Reeves explains.

According to Dr. LaBrie's study, Mr. Reeves points out, of the 208 black newspapers in America, 132 have been established since 1950; 96, since 1960; and 31, since 1970.

A generation ago, says the NNPA head, black newspapers numbered only a little over 100, although since Russwurm's Freedom's Journal, nearly 3,000 black papers have come and gone. Now there are 208. Of these, five were founded in the 19th century: The Philadelphia Tribune, 1884; the Baltimore Afro-American and the Houston Informer & Texas Freeman, 1892; the Des Moines New Iowa Bystander, 1894; and the Indianapolis Recorder, 1895.

Mr. Reeves says there are now three black dailies in continental U. S.: The Atlanta Daily World, the Chicago Daily Defender, and the New York Daily Challenge. Weeklies number 190, semi-weeklies, five; monthlies and bi-monthlies, 10.

"Black Press Week," Mr. Reeves declares, "is the time for a re-dedication of this press to an ever-continuing fight until every black American is free to advance himself or herself to the full extent of his or her abilities."

COMMUNITY COLLEGE

Financial aid is available for qualified students enrolling in the spring alternate semester at Clark County Community College.

Thomas Brown, the college's financial aid officer, said both new and continuing students can take advantage of educational opportunity grants, the college's work-study program, and a variety of loans, including National Direct Student Loans.

More than 45 students currently are receiving financial assistance through the work-study program, which offers on-campus and off-campus employment.

On-campus jobs are available as desk clerks, human resource center assistants, library catalogers and classifiers, student activities assistants, duplicating machine operators, parking lot attendants, audio-visual operations, and stewards for the "Meals on Wheels" program.

Off-campus employment currently is available with the Nevada Mental Health Center, Economic Opportunity Board, and Operation Independence, a day care program. Additional off-campus opportunities are being developed.

Brown said his office attempts to place work-study students in jobs related to their areas of study and personal interest.

To qualify, students must demonstrate financial need, enroll full-time for 12 or more credit hours, and maintain a "C" average. Each student is required to file a confidential statement with the American College Testing Program.

For qualifying students, Brown explained, the college attempts to work out a "package" of financial assistance, combining two or more of the programs available.
