

The People's Governor.

Mike O'Callaghan

You won't find Mike O'Callaghan attending all the usual political social affairs. In fact when you'd most expect a candidate for public office to be at a massive political gathering, Mike is usually working someplace in Nevada...doing the job he was elected to do.

He's quietly getting that job done with little fanfare or spectacular press conferences. He's working to fulfill the promises he made to all Nevadans during the past four years.

Promises such as no new state general taxes. Promises such as better educational opportunities for our youth. Promises such as an educational, rehabilitative and enforcement program against drug abuse. Or promises such as creation of a consumer protection agency to protect the Nevada buyer.

Paid for by Volunteers for O'Callaghan.

Because he keeps his promises.

Mike isn't the slick, Madison Avenue candidate. But he's proud of the fact that he's kept his word to the voters. And isn't it refreshing to hear a public official say something and then work to see that it's done. The People's Governor. Mike O'Callaghan. Because He Keeps His Promises.

The editor of this paper might be willing to lend you his copy of The Christian Science Monitor.

But don't count on it. He's an expert newsman with access to many news sources and a good paper of his own. But he still wants to get the Monitor's worldwide coverage and commentary on events.

Apart from 2,711 editors, there are 20,000 educators and students, 82,000 businessmen, 495 U.S. Senators and Congressmen, 3 Supreme Court Justices who read the Monitor. Why should they know more of what's going on, and why, than you do?

For less than 11¢ a day, you can get your own special insight into the news. Everyday, like they do.

Send me 4 months of the Monitor — over 100 issues — for only $11.
