

Keiser Productions' "THE PORTRAIT" is a 16 mm color dramatization depicting the horrors of drug addiction. In the forty-three minutes the film takes to tell its story we become acquainted with the central character, Lee, and some of the people in his life.

Written by Neil Harris and Kris Keiser from the play by Neil Harris, "THE PORTRAIT" was produced in Harlem, New York for use as a teaching tool to generate much needed dialogue between potential user and nonuser, parent and young adult and individuals wishing to gain greater insight into the problems of the drug sub-culture.

For a screening, rental or purchase of this frank, but honest forty-three minute film with lesson guide included contact:
