BLACK GAMES

During Afro-American History Week (Feb. 9-16), both adults and children will be learning more about Black History and the important contributions made by Black Americans. One of the most enjoyable ways of learning about Black History this year will be through several Black history games, such as those from Shindas Toys, a division of non-profit Operation Bootstrap, Inc. Shindana's Afro-American -History-Mystery Game (shown above) comes in two volumes and is a game-puzzle the whole family can enjoy. Each contains four illustrated puzzles that are picture stories of famous Black Americans and comes complete with a spinner and 28 black history playing cards. Puzzles in Volume I highlight the contributions of Frederick Douglass, Matthew Henson, Joe Louis, and Dr. Martin Luther King.

Volume II features stories of famous Black American Women, Black Pioneers of the West, Black Inventors and Scientists, and the Life of Harriett Tubman. The object of the game is to be the first player to completely assemble a puzzle.

Black news is good news

Every day something good can happen to those beautiful ears of yours. It's called Black news. And the way you get next to it is by tuning in a National Black Network station.

Every hour on the hour 18 times a day, (slightly abbreviated schedule on Sunday) you can hear about what's happening in your world. That's because it's news reported and edited by Black people.

Listen to the good news. Black news on the National Black Network.
