

MOULIN ROUGE DECAYING

The tenants of the Moulin Rouge are up in arms over the services, or lack of them, they have been getting from it.

The match that broke the camel's back was that most of the businesses had to close down from 5 p.m. Friday to Saturday afternoon because the hotel did not have any lights.

Legal Services personnel are upset because they do not have a restroom and the air conditioning is on the blink most of the time, according to a spokesman from that office.

Room tenants said they cannot receive any telephone calls after midnight, and also the doors are locked at that time. They said maid service is very inadequate and they also have to contend with the heat most of the time because the air conditioning is always breaking down.

Most of the businesses in the hotel are threatening to move because they said the services are intolerable.

Black tenants also said they are discriminated against by the management of the hotel.

"It is unbelievable for this hotel to charge the same rates as hotels and motels downtown and on the Strip and yet give this type of poor service. But in a way we deserve it because no one will speak out against it. If this happened in a white community the hotel's license would have been pulled," one disgruntled tenant said.

WRO planning strategy against Welfare Department

The Clark County Welfare Rights Organization (WRO) launched meetings Tuesday, to try and determine how to cope with the Welfare Department, which it said is abusing welfare recipients.

The WRO will hold meetings in the West Las Vegas Library every Tuesday until a plan of action is mapped out.

Ruby Duncan, head of WRO, said her organization has no definite plan of action to take against the welfare department. We will just listen to the complaints and help them to decide what they want to do.

She said this department has been abusing its recipients for quite a while. She said the department has been terminating people without notice.

Tuesday her organization put out a list of do's for people on the welfare rolls:

"If you receive an overpayment letter from the Food Stamp Office, go to the Clark County Welfare Rights or Legal Services right away. Before the date you are supposed to contact the Food Stamp Office, someone will contact it for you.

"If you have already signed a repayment agreement, come in anyway. It is harder to change, but possibly it can be done.

"If you receive a termination letter from the Welfare Office, sign the bottom of the form, requesting a hearing. Your grant will then be continued until the matter is settled. Do this right away -- within 10 days of getting the letter if you want to get your grant next month. Mail one
