Frightening Acronyms

"OD" - drug overdose - has become one of the more frightening acronyms of this age.

Whether it's the death of a popular rock star of the kid down the street, when "OD" enters into the coroner's report, it conjures visions of a shady heroin dealer on the back streets and the clandestine injections with an illegal needle.

In Nevada drug overdose cases, according to Vern Calhoun, Chief of the Nevada Division of Investigation and Narcotics, that vision is correct only about 10% of the time.

A thorough study by the division of coroners' reports show that up to 90% of Nevada's drug overdose deaths are caused by pharmaceutically dispensed drugs, obtained either legally or illegally.

These somewhat shocking findings are both the result of and the reason for some pioneering new drug enforcement programs initiated by the state division, according to Calhoun.

During the period running from last November through March, Calhoun said 21 men and 17 women - a total of 38 in Nevada - died of drug overdose. And that of that total, 30 died of drugs obtained from legal sources, and eight died of drugs obtained illegally.

Barbiturates, Darvon and tranquilizers were the primary killers among drugs which are legally available, according to Calhoun. He said heroin accounted for only six of the eight dead from overdoses of illegal drugs.

Calhoun said the division believed that registered pharmacists would understand precisely what was happening in any given situation, and it would be difficult for their fellow professionals to "con" them.
