

Dr. Dorothy Brown Receives Bicentennial Award

Dr. Dorothy Brown, Clinical Professor of Surgery at Meharry Medical College and Educational Director of Joint Meharry-Riverside Hospital Program, was one of six outstanding American women recently honored with Bicentennial Awards, presented by the Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, Inc.

In making the awards, Thelma Thomas Daley, National President, stated, "In recognition of the special contributions and far-reaching accomplishments women have made in the past 200 years of our nation's history, Delta is presenting Bicentennial Awards. The honorees we are saluting serve as an inspiration to all American women."

Dr. Dorothy Brown was recognized for "combining a sense of social and political responsibility with excellence and efficiency in the area of health care services," according to the program.

Also honored were: Mrs. Betty Ford, First Lady and activist for women's rights; Mrs. Gertrude Johnson Williams, Vice President of Publishing Company; Mrs. Jean Hutson, Schomburg Collection, and Mrs. Dorothy Porter, Moorland Collection, for acquiring and cataloging the visual arts and letters of black Americans; and Mrs. Lady Bird Johnson, humanitarian.

Delta Sigma Theta was founded in 1913 by twenty-two young women at Howard University, Washington, D.C. Today there are over 85,000 members in 557 chapters in the United States, Virgin Islands, Haiti and Liberia.
