

BACK LAW ENFORCEMENT IN THE BLACK COMMUNITY

THE PUBLISHER SPEAKS

By LAWRENCE ALBERT

The Las Vegas Voice Newspaper has proven to KVOV that prejudice Sy Newman cannot run West Las Vegas.

Senator Neal has been the only black who solely advertised in our newspaper and felt he needed no other advertisement in other newspapers or major radio stations.

We're now beginning to show that the Las Vegas Voice newspaper is becoming effective.

Out of our endorsements, of white and black, we only lost four and these four are the ones that were short of funds to really campaign for themselves.

I think Senator Neal, like I always have said, is more qualified for State Senator, to represent our community, rather than Bob Bailey.

Now I hope the community would pull itself together and if Mr. Bailey is so sincere about helping our community, let him assist Senator Neal.

I will ask once again that Lonie Chaney and Marion Bennett to please send their press releases to the Las Vegas Voice Newspaper.

I really appreciate the large turnout at the polls. I strongly encourage our 18-year-olds to register to vote in our up and coming elections in the future.

The Las Vegas Voice Newspaper will continue fighting for the community.

Business In The Black by Charles E. Belle

The Employment Enigma

One way to put the peanut farmer who aspires to be President is audacious, a word he apparently accepts for himself. Some people might call it brashness. But there is nothing bold in his Presidential plans for blacks and other poor people. May he never go to the unemployment ghettos with his present work ethics.

James Earl Carter will not reveal or does not have any particular employment program for the poor. In August, the present occupant of the White House and James Earl Carter were asked by the Hearst Newspaper chain to name their ten most important goals if elected.

The peanut farmer put the employment problem in second place on his list. While the President forgot to mention making jobs, James Earl Carter played with the problem. The administration blamed the recent August rise in unemployment on unexpectedly large increases in the civilian labor force.

It seems the volunteer army is not exactly sopping up a surplus of workers for soldiering. The labor force in August actually grew by a relatively small amount, only 154,000. The administration blamed an "extraordinary" influx of women, some one million, for throwing off their projections. Claiming their was a large increase in the number of people with jobs, but that the unemployment has risen because of even more job seekers.

The administration is praying the number of people seeking jobs will stay the same for the rest of the year.

While blacks and teen-age unemployment jumped sharply higher both Presidential candidates seem to be pretending to forget about the unemployment problem.

HI YA WHITE BOYS

The peanut farmer put it this way, I believe that everyone who is able to work ought to work (as in lazy and shiftless)-and ought to have an opportunity to work (God Bless America).

I am determined to have a blanced budget (down with welfare), and end the inflationary spiral (hi ya white boys), putting our unemploy-BUSINESS IN THE BLACK (Continued to page 3.)
