You won't like this picture. They — the police — put a number under it. It's what you get when you're picked up for shoplifting. And it becomes part of an official record, a record you'd just as soon forget. So give some thought now to Nevada's law on shoplifting. It's tough. You should know about it. In addition to existing criminal penalties, Mom and Dad (or you, if you are 18 or over) can be liable for a fine up to $250, plus attorney and court fees, plus cost of item taken. All this embarrassment and expense is not worth a free picture, is it? Shoplifting is stealing. Stealing in Nevada is a serious crime. Don't risk it!
