PEANUT FARMER MAKES IT

Things are getting thick as Peanut Butter in D.C.

The Peanut Farmer from Plains, Georgia made it big in Washington today. Just goes to show you that the American dream is still very much alive. One thing sure, our illustrious President won't be working for peanuts anymore. Which brings up another old saying, 'It don't matter if you're rich or poor, as long as you have money'. Getting down to a more serious vein, we wish our new President all the best and if within our power, grant him the wisdom to take care of the country's problems, black, white yellow or whatever. Maybe, a peanut farmer from Georgia is just what this country needs.

P.S. Congrats to Mondale, after all, what good is a Carter without a Mondale!

DOWN TO THE WIRE?

MULLIN UNDECIDED

Judge Mullen refused to give any comment as to whether or not he would be seeking the 4-year Judge seat.

In a conversation with Lawrence Albert, Publisher of the Las Vegas Voice Newspaper, Judge Mullen stated that he would not know his decision until the final day for filing.

I would further go on to say that Judge Mullen should surely seek the 4-year term of Judgeship. Even though we have had our ups and downs, he hasn't been a bad judge after all. Blacks should strongly urge him to seek the 4-year term of Judgeship.
