It's star time on Soul Train this weekend as Natalie Cole and Arthur Prysock, both award winning song stylists, share top billing on television's black musical showcase.

From her newly-released Unpredictable album, the sophisticated Ms. Cole sings "I Got Love on my Mind" and her own composition, "Peaceful Livin'." Last year she received two Grammy's for Best Vocal Performance and Best Rhythm and Blues Vocal Performance in the female category as well as the International Tokyo Music Festival Award.

A master of the romantic ballad, Prysock offers his smooth delivery of "When Love is New" and "I Want You Baby." Although his popularity dates back to the 1940's when he made his reputation with "They All Say I'm the Biggest Fool," recorded with the Buddy Johnson band, Prysock went through a period of obscurity for several years. He's now regaining his popularity singing concerts, in night clubs and occasionally on television.

The Soul Train dancers and guest interviews by producer-host Don Cornelius provide added entertainment.

Soul Train is sponsored by Johnson Products Co., the nation's leading black manutics.
