"It'll be the biggest entertainment happening of this year!" was the prediction of Hotel Sahara Entertainment Director Jack Eglash in referring to the three-week engagement of Totie Fields and Bert Convy which began Thursday, April 7, in the hotel's Congo Room. The stint marked Miss Fields' return to the Las Vegas stage which was the scene of her brightest triumphs prior to the tragic loss of her leg last year, which was the scene of her brightest triumphs prior to the tragic loss of her leg last year. And Eglash proved to be right, as attested by the excitement and packed houses attending her performance. Always recognized as one of the best comediennes around, she has emerged from her recuperation bigger and brighter than ever. Her obvious delight at being back "in action" is transmitted to showgoers in her effervescent delivery and in her ability to see the humorous side of every human condition.

Friends and fans from every place imaginable have converged on Las Vegas to see and enjoy the indomitable spirit of this funny lady. One of the most underrated aspects of Miss Fields' talent is her fine voice and singing style, and she doles out a generous portion to her appreciative audience. Her onstage presence is a warm and happy reunion.

The choice of Bert Convy as a co-headliner is a proven winner, since these two have been paired successfully on prior occasions. Convy is one of those rare multiple talents who come along every so often. Besides looking good, he offers a keen awareness of the proper way to deliver a song in his rich voice (and accompanied by a talented duo of backup girl singers). His comedic offerings are well-received and are proof of "paying his dues" in numerous stage performances, TV shows and movies. Convy's contribution is a fine complement of a delightful show.

The Fields-Convy engagement is presented in the Sahara's Congo Room through April 28, with a dinner show and a midnight cocktail performance nightly.
