

sweet talking, President Carter has promised to appoint more women and minorities to the judicial bench. But a Justice Department spokesman said, "Affirmative action is not a mandate for judgeships. We want the best qualified people."

Attorney General Griffin Bell, was one of those Georgia back woods people picked for the highest post in the Justice Department. Black folks can best start "trusting" President Carter when he picks black Ph.D's from the post office and black city counselors at-law in correlation to the racial lines of this country to fill the over 1,000 jobs with five figure pay at the President's finger tips.

President Gets Letter From Congressional Black Caucus.

The Congressional Black Caucus has urged President Carter to appoint Black Americans to a new commission which will control who gets paid for published music ideas. In a letter to the President, Parren J. Mitchell, Caucus Chairman expressed the Caucus' "keen interest" in seeing that one of the five positions on the copyright Royalty Tribunal was filled by a black person. Mitchell stated "the decisions of this Commission will have special implications for the significant numbers of Black Americans who compose and arrange the music and write the lyrics of many this nation's most popular songs." In fact, these decisions will affect the people who own the publishing rights to soul, rhythm and blues music.

Moreover, this five man Tribunal will have significant control over who gets paid from copyrighted material used in the music, television, radio, cable television and the jukebox businesses. "There is no question stated Mitchell, "that Black Americans generate a large percentage of (the) total revenues in the music industries." Numerous stories have been told about musicians, especially Black musicians, who have written songs, only to fail to reap the economics benefits because they did not understand the copyright laws.

Congressman Mitchell further stated, "we believe that many Black Americans possess (professional competence in the field of copyright policy) along with the special awareness of the impact of copyright law on those in the entertainment and communications industries." This is a significant position which can have immense benefits for American's creative community and particularly so for American's black people.

I want everyone to come to the Operation Life Conference at the Royal Inn this coming Saturday, April 23rd, at 7:30 pm. Lt/Gov. Mervyn Dymally and Carol Burris, Director of the national Women's Lobby in Washington, D. C.

The conference will involve discussions on Jobs and Economic Development in Clark County. We hope that it will be a well rounded discussion and we are including university professors, community people and policy makers. It should be very interesting and I hope everyone comes. It's free and it will also be a food time. That's Saturday night, Royal Inn Casino on Convention Center Drive at 7:30. See you there.

I want to take this space to thank the owner of the VOICE Lawrence "Big Al" Albert for being such a community spirited individual. He is a man who is with the people, understands the hardships of this community, and is willing to work for changes. He has been good to the women at Operation Life and we want to thank him and let him know publicly how we feel about him.

Early Screening is available at the Jackson Street Clinic at 402 West Jackson for medicaid children and young adults under 21 years. Let's show them they have the community's full support. Call your social worker and ask for a SAMI 25 form. If you can't get one, call us at 648-0012 and we will help. Free child care and free food from WIC are also available at Operation Life. Twenty-five families in the Banbury Cross apartment complex who had been served with 15-day eviction notices, won their district court bid to remain in their apartments until the school year is over, but lost their fight to remain permanently in the complex.

The decision was handed down Thursday by District Judge J. Charles Thompson. The 25 families had banded together as an association to fight the mass eviction and hired Attorney Harland C. Hubbard to represent them.

June Harrington, association spokeswoman, said she was disappointed they lost their case, but was extremely pleased at the additional time given them to relocate their families. She said it would have been tragic had they been forced to remove young children and teenagers from their schools in the final weeks of the school year.

She said she was also distressed that the tenants had no recourse to protect their interests, but to turn to private counsel. "It seems grossly unfair to me that financially sound, reputable tenants can be so totally at the mercy of the landlord," she contended.

Two hundred and twenty-five families reside in Banbury Cross. The new owners reportedly plan to rent the complex as an all-adult unit.

Hubbard, a 12-year resident of Las Vegas and 25-year practicing attorney, said he took the case at a reduced fee because he believed so strongly in the rights of the tenants to a fair and judicial hearing, and was especially concerned that the children be allowed to finish out the school year in their old neighborhood. Hubbard is a candidate for Las Vegas City Attorney.
