KOZA

KOZA presented a fashion show at the EOB Day Care Center last Sunday evening.

The outfits modeled were furnished by the Apparel Factory and by Sheer Joy. The African fashions were designed by Robert Wathen.

The theme of the show was "The Campus Look of 77." The African fashions were what the African exchange students will be wearing.

Vickie Alston, commentator, and Rolanda Kittler, coordinator, put the show together, and did a marvelous job.

The models were all local girls, a couple of them being high school seniors, with the rest working or attending Clark County Community College or UNLV.

Some of the girls want to be make-up artist, some fashion designers, some models, and one wants to become an actress.

This show was well put together, and Vickie and Rolanda are to be congratulated on a great job.

The fashions were all very eye appealing. Our congratulations to The Apparel Factory, Sheer Joy, and to Robert Wathen, the African designer.

This show was sponsored by EOB.

CC Legal Services Program

Clark County Legal Services Program is accepting applications for seats on its Board of Directors. Organizations and groups interested in a seat on the Board are encouraged to apply.

Clark County Legal Services Program provides legal assistance in civic matters to low-income residents of Clark County. Clark County Legal Services Program is funded by the Legal Services Corporation, court filing fees monies and the United Way of Southern Nevada. Under a grant from the Nevada Division for Aging Services, CCLSP also conducts the Senior Citizens Law Project.

In keeping with Legal Services Corporation regulations, Clark County Legal Services Program By-Laws require that fifteen members of its twenty-five member Board of Directors must be attorneys. Attorney members of the Board may represent client organizations, bar associations, neighborhood groups, anti-poverty groups and civil rights organizations.

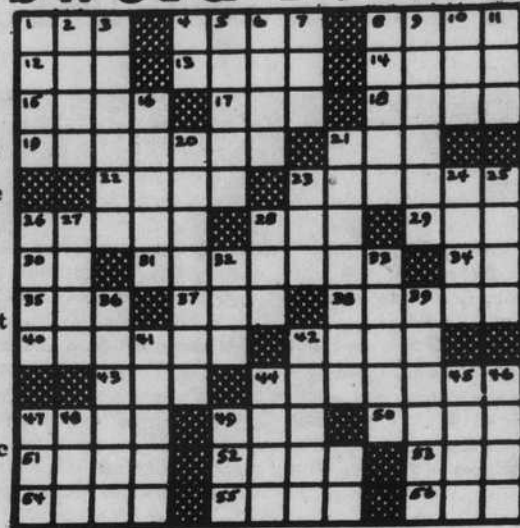

Eligible clients or client representatives will hold ten seats on the Board of Directors. An individual is eligible for legal services if she or he earns $3,713.00 or less. Client representatives to the Board must represent organizations composed of eligible clients.

For more information or to apply for a seat, organizations should contact Clark County Legal Services Program (301 S. Highland Drive, #110, Las Vegas, Nevada 89106; telephone: 386-0690). Applications must be received by September 19, 1977.
