Valley High

Tammy Blackwell, Valley's 1977-78 Homecoming Queen, was good-humored about posing for the VOICE newspaper. Tammy didn't even mind missing part of a class to do the favor, and that is unusual, because Tammy is a very dedicated student.

Valley's Varsity Marching Band is very proud of its Drum Major David Holt (right), shown here discussing a special musical arrangement with Guy Silva and Daryl Morris. David has attended several special camps and schools as part of his duties as Drum Major, and he makes a mighty pretty sight in full uniform, leading the Marching Band on the field.

Jonni Wright (right) and Cynthia Manor (center), used their lunch hour in the Valley cafeteria to do some planning on behalf of the Valley Pep Club, of which Jonni is President. The plans involved special seating at basketball games for Pep Club members.

The camera caught Derethea Watkins (center) a little unaware during Journalism class. Derethea, an "A" student in Journalism, was working on an interview assignment with Sharon Bouck. Miss Watkins is a graduating senior, and plans to eventually be a lawyer. From what we've seen, she'll be a good one.

The Human Relations Club sponsored by Mr. Raynor and Mrs. Soong; and recently elected president, Sandra Westley. The Human Relations Club's basic idea is that people can relate to other people desegregating race, creed, or color. Left to right, Janice Walker, Penny Houslen, and Iris Price, sitting, Sandra Wesley.

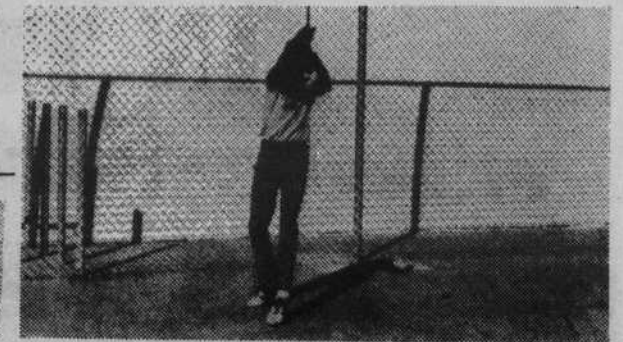

Frank Marzan (left) and Adolfo Calderon (right), both members of the Student Executive Council of Valley High spent a great deal of time working on Valley's Homecoming celebration. Frank had charge of all money, both collected and disbursed, and Adolfo headed up one of the key committees. Adolfo is wearing the T-shirt and four pounds of grease because this picture was taken on "50's Day", one of the many special "days" held during the Homecoming Week festivities.

English can be fun, even for athletes, which may be why Xavier Coleman (center) is laughing, or it may be that he's laughing at something Ken Blanche (left) said to Janis Sapperstein.

Mike Gibson pictured in the tennis play action shots represented Dell Robison Junior High School in the 1976 Spelling Bee and finished second in Clark County.
