IMPORTANT FOOD STAMP CHANGES

The Food and Nutrition Service has announced that effective Jan. 1, 1979, food stamp recipients will no longer have to pay for the purchase of their food stamps.

Under the current Food Stamp Program, most households participating have been required to pay something for their food stamp allotment in order to receive the bonus amount.

Elimination of the purchase requirement means that participating households will receive only the bonus food stamps.

For those households currently certified for food stamps through January, their ATP card for January will reflect this change.

Other changes in the Food Stamp Program mandated by Federal Law are expected to be put into effect after March 1, 1979, and will be announced.

For further information call your local Food Stamp Office or call this toll free number: 1-800-992-0900.

NEWS OF FOOD INSTANT PARTY SNACKS

Want to spend more time partying and less time preparing?

Here's a way to cut corners, pare the budget, and keep your reputation as a hostess intact and shining. They're called "instant snacks".

Next time you are preparing for a party (scheduled or unscheduled) build it around tasty combinations of flavored "dipping chips" and instant soup mixes. You can buy them now—and they'll be fresh as a daisy well into next year. You no longer have to load your refrigerator with expensive, highly-perishable goodies in order to serve your guests a wide selection of tangy snacks.

Rounds, or a new variation known as Disco's, curly "chips" designed especially for scooping.

Among the three types you can choose a number of flavors—plain, rye, wheat, sesame, garlic, bacon-flavor, or onion.

FACTS & FIGURES

The United States Government publishes over 100,000 reports each year, plus 450,000 articles, books and papers. The world's scientific and technical literature is increasing at a rate of about 60,000,000 pages each year.

While older Americans make up 30 percent of all drivers, they are involved in less than 20 percent of all accidents reported in this country. One insurance company, Colonial Penn, dedicated to serving the insurance needs of mature Americans, issues automobile insurance primarily to drivers over 50—and offers those older drivers a lifetime renewal guarantee feature.

UNDERSTANDING YOUR HOLIDAY BLUES

It happens to Mary K. every year. The wreaths, Christmas carols and gift-giving trigger painful memories and depression. As friends and family members anticipate the festivities, Mary's depression grows. The holiday season becomes a burden almost too great for her to bear.

Mary's case is not an isolated one. Psychiatrists know the number of documented cases of depression rises significantly during the Christmas and New Year's period. They point to a number of reasons which explain why the holiday season is an emotional hurdle for many.

Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year's are "time machines" because they take us back to childhood feelings of hostility, resentment or insecurity. Increased time spent with family members during the holidays may cause you to dwell on these feelings, especially if your childhood memories are not happy ones.

The absence of a family member due to death or separation is painfully obvious during this time of year and can also result in anxiety and depression.

If you are a person who is often "down," you may be unable to cope with the pressure exerted by society to enjoy oneself during the holiday season. If your mood is not joyous, you are considered a scrooge at best. Most holiday depressions are mild enough that they do not require medical attention. Positive changes in your life, such as new friendships to replace missing ones, may eliminate your blues completely. But for some the depression is severe and persistent enough to require psychiatric care and even hospitalization. Appropriate attention and pre-holiday counseling is recommended. By reaching the root of your depression, you may lead a happier and more satisfying life all year round.

Medicines, such as tranquilizers and antidepressants, have greatly enhanced treatment of severe depression. Since the introduction of these drugs in the mid-fifties, the number of patients confined to mental hospitals has decreased by more than half. Pharmaceutical advances help keep people out of hospitals, allowing them to continue to be active, productive members of society in spite of their illness.

The National Pharmaceutical Council, a nonprofit organization, provides information about health topics as a service to consumers. If you have questions about your health, or medicines you take, always follow the advice of your doctor or pharmacist.
