National Pitch, Hit & Run Competition Set For Youngsters

If you're between 9 and 12 years old, can pitch and hit a baseball and run 90 feet, you have a chance to become a national champion in Major League Baseball's official youth program, Pitch, Hit & Run.

Now in its third year, this national competition is being sponsored by the 2400 participating Burger King® restaurants throughout the country. The program is also supported and endorsed by the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports and the National Recreation and Park Association.

Approximately 2.4 million boys and girls, or 16.6 percent of the national total in the 9-12 age group, are expected to participate in Pitch, Hit & Run this year. You can obtain an official registration form at any of the more than 2400 participating Burger King restaurants or park and recreation departments throughout the country.

Part of All-Star Program

Registration is held from April 2 to April 30, with the local contest starting May 5. The competition continues through four levels of elimination until two contestants remain in each of the four age brackets (9,10,11,12). The finals will be held as part of the All-Star game festivities in Seattle July 17.

Each youngster competes in three categories: pitching at a target, hitting for distance and running to first base for speed.

Professional Experts

This year, three of baseball's biggest names—Ron Guidry of the New York Yankees, Jim Rice of the Boston Red Sox and Davey Lopes of the Los Angeles Dodgers—will be the professional experts in the competition.

The three All-Stars will be featured in the Pitch, Hit & Run Tips Booklet, with Guidry giving youngsters advice on pitching, Rice teaching hitting and Lopes coaching running. The booklet, which also contains the official Pitch, Hit & Run entry form, will be available free during April at participating Burger King restaurants throughout the country.

Prayer Poem

Washington Gladden (1836-1918) was a distinguished American Congregationalist clergyman who served one pastorate in Columbus, Ohio for thirty-two years.

Gladden was a man of great social consciousness and his words in "O Master Let Me Walk With Thee" speak to the oppressed as well as to those who oppress them. He speaks to our nation now, even as when he wrote these words in 1879, one hundred years ago.

*O Master, let me walk with thee
In lowly paths of service free;
Tell me thy secret; help me bear
The strain of toil, the fret of care.*

*Help me the slow of heart to move
By some clear, winning word of love;
Teach me the wayward feet to stay,
And guide them in the homeward way.*

*Teach me thy patience; still with thee
In closer, dearer company,
In work that keeps faith sweet and strong,
In trust that triumphs over wrong.*

Keep on working, trusting, praying and doing all the things which God wills for us to do. Give thanks to God in public worship for the victories which He brings.

WORDS OF LIFE

"As he thinketh in his heart, so is he."

—Proverbs 23:7

1. Think victoriously. Black Americans, despite their (our) talk about being benighted and our entitlement to reparations, must nonetheless think victoriously. God is not only on our side but also shares our life. God and victory are one. Hence we must do more than think victoriously; we must actually live victoriously every day.

2. Think rich! Every word picture of heaven projects that ultimate reality as marked by richness and plenty, as a land (or area of life) overflowing with milk and honey. Heaven's realities are meant to be entered into every day by all of us, by everybody. God wants us to share today in heaven's richness... and glory!

3. Think gratefully. There are no "self-made" men or women, or young people. To be self-made means being a hermaphrodite. Are you a hermaphrodite? If not, then we are who, what and where we are with thanks due to many people and especially to the goodness and grace of God. As we think in these ways, so shall we see ourselves as actually becoming.
