

Mary Gojack Announces U.S. Senate Candidacy

"I represent the interests of the working men and women. I am 'people' oriented," says former Nevada state senator Mary Gojack in announcing her candidacy for the U. S. for the United States Senate. "I enter this race because I don't think the people of Nevada are asking too much to expect their United States Senator to put in the time that's necessary to do the job well.

The 44-year-old Gojack said the choice between herself and Senator Paul Laxault will be a sharply defined one.

GOJACK

"In running for the Senate I am offering Nevadans a clear choice. One option is to seek a future guided by ideas as stale as they are simplistic. The option I seek to offer Nevadans is representation that seeks a future that offers change and confidence through innovation and strength," said Gojack, who has never lost a political race.

"To the doubters, the disbelievers, and the detractors — who I've overcome in every race I've run — I say today that I am running to win, and I fully expect to win.

many millions of poor Americans.

several years now, and has provided modest benefits without cumbersome administrative mechanisms or stigmatizing recipients.

Building an income maintenance feature into the tax system would make aid automatic and do away with the administrative and policing bureaucracy that eats up an increasing portion of the nation's welfare budget.

It would end the dehumanizing aspects of a system that makes poor people grovel for inadequate benefits and which avoids assisting

A system that is simple, equitable, and provides help to all in need is the goal toward which we should be working. Instead, every welfare reform plan becomes burdened with meaningless, punitive features, with senseless work requirements, and with attacks on people whose poverty is caused by factors beyond their control.

It's going to take a long, hard, educational drive to destroy the myths about welfare and poverty. In the meantime, even small changes for the better should be supported.

SHAME!

In the July 18 issue of the LAS VEGAS SENTINEL there was featured an article which dealt with an urgent need for the City of Las Vegas to become involved in a cleanup campaign for the citizens of the West Las Vegas area. In particular, the article cited the unsightly trash pile accumulating at the corner of Highland and Carey. Three weeks have past and not a single thing is being done to remove that mess. It's a haven for rodents and rapidly developing into a city dump. SOMETHING SHOULD BE DONE ABOUT THIS...and NOW!
