Bailey Attends Business Signing

William "Bob" Bailey, executive director of a Nevada economic development company, has accepted an invitation to attend President Carter's signing Friday in Washington, D.C. of a Senate bill affecting small business.

President Carter is scheduled to sign into law Senate Bill 299, Small Business "Regulatory Flexibility Act," in the East Room of the White House.

the bill will deregulate some of the reporting responsibilities of small businessmen, which will cut down a lot of red tape and paperwork, Bailey said. "Passage of the bill is an important step toward helping small businesses survive.

Subsequent to President Carter's announcement in July 1978 that he had called for a White House Conference on small business, Bailey became an active participant in regional conferences and open forums and was elected chairman of the conference rules committee.

Bailey is chairman of the Las Vegas NAACP's economic development committee.
