Caesars Sportsbook
Opens With Big Bang

Caesars Palace resort-casino in the Las Vegas officially opened its new Sports Book on October 1, in time to accommodate boxing fans interested in placing bets on the long-awaited bout between WBC Heavyweight Champion Larry Holmes and three-time former title holder Muhammad Ali. The Sports Book will be open daily, and will concern itself with college and professional football, baseball (playoff and World Series) and selected special sporting events. According to Sports Book Manager, Bobby Gordon, the facility at Caesars Palace has already proved immensely successful, due in a large part to the overwhelming interest in the Holmes-Ali match. "In only the first day and a half we were open, we sold over 2,000 tickets amounting to nearly $1,000,000 in bets, which is not only a record for any fight based in Las Vegas, but is also a world record as well."

The Sports Book at Caesars Palace is surely the most unique in Las Vegas; it is designed in the shape of a gazebo, and all of its staff — both male and female — is dressed in the characteristic British ascot attire of grey morning coats, riding boots, large bow ties, and stately top hats. This new addition to the famous resort-casino is located between the main casino (Caesars Forum) and the Fantasy Tower Casino, adjacent to the Spanish Steps restaurant.

NLV Fairshow
Draws Interest

The biggest, most exciting and colorful Fairshow in the history of North Las Vegas begins at 10 a.m. Friday (Oct. 24) with a parade from the Cheyenne Shopping Center at Civic Center Drive and Cheyenne to the fairgrounds at the Clark County Community College at 3200 East Cheyenne and will continue through Sunday.
