Human Relations Department News

WE WISH YOU A MERRY CHRISTMAS
 .....AND A HAPPY NEW YEAR

Al Brown, Coordinator
Human Relations

When children in America are bringing down the boxes from the attic and unwrap the tiny figures of the Nativity scene, it is nice to know that other people in other lands are doing the same. From the Bethlehem Cave of the Syrian children in that land where Jesus was born, to the Jeslicky in Czechoslovakia around which the children are singing their Christmas Hymns, then back to the North America where the Mexicana are setting up their beloved Nacimiento of the Pasada. All are sharing in a universal gesture of reverence and love.

All the figures of the Nativity are there: Mary the Holy Mother, Joseph and the Baby Jesus. The Three Wise Men in their royal robes. The Shepherds with their crooks, the lowly cattle, the oxen, the asses, the sheep and lambs. And whether it is erected in the largest of the world's

Cathedrals or built with simplicity in the crudest of homes, the message of the Creche is the same. Christ The Saviour Is Born.

GIVE YOURSELF THE UNIVERSE!

TUESDAYS 6-7 AM
 CHANNEL 5
 BEGINNING JAN. 6

Clark County Community College and Channel 5 offer a new concept in higher education. Called "TeleStudies", this program is designed for those wishing to work toward an Associate Degree through independent study.

PROJECT: UNIVERSE

The first course is a basic, yet comprehensive introduction to astronomy as a fascinating, evolving science. These programs include animation, special effects, film footage plus interviews with scientists, and will be accompanied with a text and study guide.

For registration details please call the Registrar at Clark County Community College 643-0832, weekdays.

Rancho Student Honored

The Human Resources Center in Washington, D.C. has selected a Rancho High School senior, Stuart Turner, to attend and help evaluate the national Minority Apprenticeship Program at a meeting in Washington on December 8.

Turner was one of five local students to be involved in the program this past summer. The students, all with strong career objectives in science, mathematics or engineering, were involved in scientific and technical work experiences under the individual direction of scientists at the Las Vegas Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) Laboratory.

Turner worked with Jeffrey van Ee, an engineer, in visibility monitoring and solar systems.
