CLARK COUNTY SCHOOL DISTRICT ACTIVITIES

96 Reps From School Districts Fly To D.C.

On November 15, 96 representatives from the Clark County School District will board an airplane bound for Washington, D.C. to participate in the national Close Up Foundation program until November 21.

The 84 high school students will be joined by eleven teachers, three District administrators, Robert Forbuss, School Board member and 15 representatives from Gorman High School. In Washington, they will meet 80 representatives from Reno and Carson City to make up the complete Nevada contingent.

During the last school year, 32 Clark County School District students participated in the first Nevada Close Up experience. This year, the program has been expanded to include representatives from Chaparral and Valley High Schools, thereby providing more students with the opportunity to meet with legislators and observe first-hand the sophisticated operation of our federal government.

The Close Up Foundation is a non-profit and multi-partisan organization with no affiliation to any branch of government, political party of special interest group.

Partially financed by the U.S. Congress, the Foundation commits two full fellowships to each participating high school to cover both tuition and transportation costs for one teacher and one student. These fellowships ensure that the Close Up experience is available to all students without regard to family income or academic performance.

Clark County School District officials and administrators endorse the Foundation's outstanding and unique program and thank the community for its generous support.

Native American Week Observed

Students in the Clark County School District will observe Native American Week, Nov. 16-20.

A variety of programs are planned to familiarize youngsters with the achievements, contributions and traditions of Native Americans. The film, "Windwalker," will be shown free to interested students and members of the community at the Moapa Valley High School on Nov. 18 and at J.D. Smith Junior and senior high schools and bulletin boards will feature Native Americans in elementary and secondary school locations.

All seven sixth grade centers will hold Native American assemblies which will feature native dancers, sign language stories and songs and craft displays.

For additional information on Native American activities, call Brad Reitz at 642-0766.

CLARK COUNTY COMMUNITY COLLEGE

BUSINESS

Starting a small business without knowing all the fundamentals is like driving a car on Route 15 blindfolded. Making use of only some of the skills will surely cause a disaster down the road.

With this in mind, Clark County Community College, in cooperation with the Small Business Administration, will sponsor a one-day Pre-Business Workshop on Friday, November 13, 1981 in Room C-1057 at the Cheyenne Campus of the College.

The Pre-Business Workshop will begin at 9:00 a.m. and continue through 4:30 p.m.

The focus will be on practical information for those starting a business. The topics covered will include organization and planning, legal and financial details, plus marketing and advertising.

This Pre-Business Workshop will be limited to the first 40 persons who apply. A fee of $10.00, which includes the cost of refreshments, is payable at the time of registration.

For further details about the Pre-Business Workshop, call 643-6060 Ext. 410.

HANDGUN

Concern for the safe and accurate use of a handgun by Clark County Community College and the North Las Vegas Police Department has led to a co-sponsored handgun safety course

November 7 - December 12 at North Las Vegas Hall Council Chambers.

The course will teach the practice, discipline and mental preparation necessary for use of a gun to interested participants and will offer practice under the supervision of a State certified range master from the North Las Vegas Police Department.

For further information please contact Clark County Community College, 643-6060, Ext. 453.
