of punishing poor people. Its proponents talk about Workfare as a device to help instill better work habits in people and to make them feel they are earning their welfare checks.

That might be a justifiable defense of a program that put in real public service jobs, such as the CETA program slated for elimination, or in a real-world training program. But Workfare?

Poor people know the score. They can tell a real job from a fake one. And they can tell a real opportunity from a forced work situation whose true aim is to make taxpayers feel the poor aren't getting something for nothing.

By definition, AFDC families are made up of children and female family heads. The help those families need is not forced make-work programs or ruthless cuts in their food stamps, housing aid and welfare checks.

If the Administration was serious about changing the present unworkable system and providing incentives to work it would introduce true reforms.

Real jobs and skills training, day care centers, and a retention of benefits for the working poor would be part of such reforms.

A refundable income tax that eliminates the administrative and police work in welfare and provides each family with the minimum it needs for a decent standard of living should be the key to a new federal income maintenance program replacing welfare.

been here before and survived.

We as Black people can be thankful for the fact that we still maintain our skills for survival. And irrespective of what that "ole" man in the White House does, we as a people will survive. To put it another way, in the words of the Harlem play, "When Hell freezes over, we'll skate."

staging nude acts. ONLY A CITATION WAS ISSUED.

How come the double standard when dealing with black businesses and black people? The actions of the police at Westside Story and the Peoples Choice was totally wrong.

Actions like this incited the riots in Watts, Newark, Detroit and many others cities across the country. The Westside community is very upset over this incident on the Westside and I understand that there is a call for a community meeting to address themselves to this problem with the Metro Police.

There have been many other similar incidents with the police in recent times.

Mindful of the fact that we need and appreciate the police protection, they need to "tighten their game" as far as blacks are concerned.

Sincerely,
Henry P. Miller
