

SANTINI SUPPORTS LEGISLATION TO PUT PEOPLE BACK TO WORK

Because the unemployment rate among blacks has reached a whopping 18.5%, putting our people back to work must be a top priority of the federal government," Rep. Jim Santini said today.

Santini's comments came after a recent informal roundtable discussion he held with members of the Las Vegas black community.

"Certainly, it is no surprise that the number one topic discussed was unemployment," Santini said,

"While the picture is bleak for whites with an unemployment rate of 8.4% at the end of last month, for blacks it was a devastating 16.5%. And unemployment for black youths is a staggering 57.4%. Something must be done and done fast."

The Nevada Democrat told the group the solution is job training programs that really have a chance of putting people back to work.

Santini said he is pushing for a bill now being considered in the

Santini

House that would provide pay during the training program. In addition, the House bill would provide more money ($5.4 billion and would give control of the program to the cities and counties rather than to the state.

Santini said he also endorses the new concept known as "urban enterprise zones" as a way to attract businesses back to the inner city.

The four-term Congressman concluded by saying that he wants to hold more roundtable discussions such as this with community leaders.

"These sessions, in which we have the chance to give and take ideas, are wonderful learning experiences for me. I agree with what I heard that afternoon, that we need new, innovative ways for dealing with our problems. I heard some exciting ideas from people who have to deal with these problems on a day-to-day basis. I am eager to help implement some of these ideas."
