

BROWN PUBLISHING ANNOUNCES SENTINEL-VOICE NEWSPAPER MERGER

Brown Publishing Company president Ed Brown announced the merger of the Las Vegas Sentinel, Nevada's largest black community newspaper and the Vegas Voice, Las Vegas' oldest weekly newspaper, effective with his issue. "Due to the increased newsprint and production costs, we find it more practical, at this time, to merge both publications," said Brown. "The concept of maintaining both papers is not totally disbanded. Their individual identity will be maintained and will contribute to a broader perspective of objective journalism."

Publisher Betty Brown stated that "the size of the joint publication will enlarge with national full color black syndicated magazine sections and we will have an expanded opportunity of adding the reports of the national black correspondents and feature services. We foresee a new dimension being added to the community publication. We are excited about the prospects."

ADOPT PROGRAM ANNOUNCED

"The Toiyaba National Forest is offering sections of Mt. Charleston Trails for adoption," said Reed Gardner, Las Vegas District Recreation Forester.

"We are asking church groups, Scouts, students, service clubs, or others to sign up for a portion of trail," he said. "They can actually adopt a trail, or a part of one, for themselves."

Under this agreement, you select a trail and make frequent visits for maintenance and improvement. Trail Guardians should be prepared to work on the trail to give it proper maintenance."

The Las Vegas Sentinel-Voice welcomes letters reflecting all points of view. Your letter is more likely to be printed if you type it, keep it short, stick to one subject and sign your print. Letters will not be returned. We do not print anonymous letters, open letters or copies of letters sent elsewhere. We reserve the right to shorten letters or withhold signatures when necessary or upon request. Write to Letters To The Editor, Las Vegas Sentinel-Voice, 1212 So. Eastern Ave., Las Vegas, Nev. 89104.
