Dear J.P.,
I've just purchased a new swimsuit that is high on the thigh and reveals body hair in spots I don't normally notice, but is quite noticeable in my new suit. What is the best and easiest way to remove this newly discovered body hair?

Marva
Dear Marva,
There are three ways to remove body hair from delicate areas revealed by the bikini wearers: shaving, waxing, and depilatories. Shaving is quick, but hair regrowth is quick, too. So you'll have to repeat more often. Waxing is longer lasting. Sally Hansen has a natural Cold Wax hair remover kit which gives very professional results at home and lasts about 8 weeks. Nair's newest offering in hair removal is a roll-on with baby oil for the bikini area which lasts for about a week to ten days. You can find these brands and many more at your favorite drug store.

Dear J.P.,
I love trying new fragrances; using the same one all the time bores me. How can I try new fragrances and stay within my budget?

you'll stay on budget.
Dear J.P.,
My hair is just not acting right. It's got the summer "Las Vegas Blahs." When my hair doesn't look right, I don't feel right. Where can I find a beautician who can put the magic back in my hair?

who will be entertaining and modeling with the 49 Black Models who are in town for the Miss Black Model competition being held here in Las Vegas this weekend.
J.P.

Jackie
Dear Jackie,

Fear not. You're not alone; we all have this feeling at one time or another. The way I've found to be most successful in finding a good beautician or shop is to find a person who's hair you admire, even if it's a stranger. Pay them a compliment by asking them where they have their hair done and by whom. Armed with this information, you're on your way to getting over the "Las Vegas Hair Blahs."

P.S. Good luck to Marva and Silas and all the swell models in their group,

Terri

Dear Terri,
You're in luck. There are new body sprays which are gentle deodorants and light fragrances all in one. It's a great way to try new scents and stay summer-fresh all day long. The good news is they're just $3 a try. The newest of this type fragrance is called "Irresistible Imposters," and is rightly named. Scents they imitate are Oscar, Jontue, and Opium, to name just three of many. Trying this type fragrance can be fun and
