BILLIE ROWE'S NOTEBOOK

N'YORK CITY: Industry should not be penalized for the mind and soul weakness of those who drink, or smoke, too much. We must be ever vigilant against the encroachment of government upon the individual's right to indulge in non criminal acts.

WRITE LINES: Several nations, the teevee and the flicker screen will be involved in the making of "The Josephine Baker Story," according to our European sources. It could be the biggest partnership ever conceived and make Diana'mite Ross, who is to star in the production, a world class piece of human superstar property. Her company will also have a hand in the deal, giving her several roads to the bank.

"Happy Hour" is a thing of the past in too many bars, but in this case is a $13,000,000 movie scheduled to start the '85 N'Year right for Richard Pryor. The Tri-Star comedy will be produced by Brian Grazer. . .

. . . Patrick Sean Clark has won the McDonald's/Lorraine Hansberry Playwriting Award for plays featuring the black experience. The University of Missouri student was also a winner of the David Library Award on American Freedom for "Eleven-Zulu."

The seven finalists in the 16th annual American College Theatre Festival were presented at Kennedy Center. Clark's dual victory is a historic first for the nationwide contest. . . STAY LOOSE . . . Billy Rowe is a syndicated columnist.
