Bennett given time To repair buildings

The Rev. Marion Bennett was granted more time to finish repairs on his 619 W. Van Buren Ave. apartment buildings — even though he has a form from the Las Vegas Building and Safety Department stating the building is in compliance rather than signing a form stating the conversion from a gas to electrical heating system had been properly completed.

Becker, who in earlier hearings had pressed for a settlement on the case, suggested that Bennett be given more time to complete the repairs in light of the confusion. An Aug. 9 hearing was set.

Bennett's attorney Ralph Denton said that he and his client believed the necessary work had been completed based on the building and safety department form.

Mason, Nevada Economic Development Corp. director Bob Bailey, Rev. Jesse Wesley, Executive Director of the Nevada Black Chamber of Commerce Gwen Brown, and Dalton Properties Construction Co. secretary-treasurer Evan Williams.

According to County Commissioners Karen Hayes and Bruce Woodbury, Keyes' name has been bounced around a lot. She is the surrogate sister of District Judge Adellar Guy.

A replacement for Wilson on the state Equal Rights Commission also will have to be found by Bryan.

Wilson, who serves as chairman of that board, was appointed to it in April 1979 by former Gov. Robert List.

Bryan re-appointed Wilson, whose three-year term on the commission expires in October.

Wilson was the first black elected to the Nevada Legislature and served three terms in the Assembly. He is credited with passage of the state's first Fair Housing Act.
