Dear Editor:

I am a Black woman in my 60's. Praise the Lord for your wonderful program to help people who cannot read.

I learned to read when I was 40 years old through the kind help of the daughter of one of my neighbors. I lived on a small farm in Louisa County, Virginia. Ginny Mae used to come to my house everyday after school and teach me to read.

She had to start with the alphabet, because I didn't even know my letters. She was so patient. She never gave up on me. I know I was not a very bright pupil.

Today, I can read the newspaper and your very fine National BLACK MONITOR. I try to help my grandchildren with their homework. I tell them how important it is to get a good education. I also try to help them to feel good about themselves so that they can achieve in school.

That is the real joy of being able to read and write. I feel like a very special person. I pray every day for little Ginny Mae who shared her love and knowledge with me.

Dear Editor:

We look forward to receiving the next issue of your very fine magazine, the National BLACK MONITOR. Your series on Black organizations is very informative. Many of them are new to us. We are learning more about our people. It is just like having a Black History lesson every month.

My uncle would also like to receive the MONITOR. He lives in Homerville, Georgia. Please let us know how he can get a subscription to one of the Black newspapers in Georgia. I have enclosed his address and my address, also.

Dear Editor:

How can I find out more about Black officers in the armed forces? I enjoyed the article about the Black naval officers in last month's issues of the National

SUSPENSION

"From fully independent four wheel suspension on Ford Tempo to computerized air suspension on Continental Mark VII, we're giving you a better feel for the road."

Rodney M. Jordan
Product Design Engineer

Ford Tempo's front end upper strut mounts channel mechanical hydraulic forces to fine-tune ride and handling quality.

Ford Motor Company is the only major American car company to offer fully independent four wheel suspension on most of its smaller, less expensive cars. Ford Escort, Mercury Lynx, Ford Tempo, Mercury Topaz, and Ford EXP all offer the comfort and sure handling of this advanced engineering development.

Ford Tempo's rear suspension longitudinal tie rods allow for "give" which reduces the effect of hard impacts.

Continental and Continental Mark VII are the only luxury cars in the world with computerized air suspension.

From Tempo to Continental, sophisticated suspension systems like these are just part of the quality that goes into every car Ford makes. Whether you're behind the wheel yourself, or just a passenger, you'll feel that quality.

On Mark VII, nitrogen gas-pressure front struts and rear shock absorbers are matched to variable rate air springs illustrated here, to provide a unique blend of ride and road handling.

Quality is Job 1.
