Wings of Love," "Plain Love," "Stay With Me Tonight" and "New Love." His latest and most impressive solo effort is "Don't Stop," his third album on the A&M Record Label.

Osborne's career has followed a path that has been best described as one of consolidation and expansion.

"With each new album, of course, you at least want to come up to the level of your previous record," he said, "and you hope to do better. After 'Stay With Me Tonight,' I didn't want to play it safe; I wanted to keep the same elements that provided me with my base in the first place, but I also wanted to show genuine growth. It's the best of both worlds, really — I try to satisfy old fans and attract new ones."

For "Don't Stop," Osborne again worked with producer George Duke, engineer Tommy Vicari, well-known musicians like guitarist Mike Sembello, and songwriters like Don Freeman, David "Hawk" Wolinski, Raymond Jones and Geoff Lieb, all of whom contributed to Osborne's past successes.

while adapting his repertoire to attract new, more broadly-based audiences. Osborne, who led the group LTD to rhythm and blues stardom through the 70's, began performing as a solo artist in 1982. His solo LPs spawned such popular hit singles as "Really Don't Need No Light," "On the

Redd Foxx to start new series—missed first taping Friday

HOLLYWOOD — ABC, currently last in prime-time ratings, became first in mid-season program changes this week as it announced two new sitcoms, one starring Redd Foxx, and a new Sunday Disney movie series. It also officially axed the low-rated "Our Family Honor" and "The Insiders" series, whose demise had been rumored for weeks.

Foxx, star of NBC's hit "Sanford and Son" from 1972-77, and later the star of a short-lived ABC variety series, is returning in "The Redd Foxx Show," playing the cantankerous owner of a combination coffee shop-newsstand in New York City. "Foxx" will air Saturdays, starting Jan. 11, the date ABC's durable "Benson" also will move to. It now is broadcast on Fridays.

Before it is even on the air, The Redd Foxx Show is in trouble. The first episode was scheduled for taping last Friday night, but was canceled following Foxx's non-appearance at Thursday's rehearsals. It is now tentatively set for shooting late this week.
